

Dear Pygmy,

So after a week a week of scorching hot weather, it has turned into what feels like autumn this week! We are keeping our fingers crossed that the good weather returns soon!

This week, the two Pygmy bubbles focussed on their transition to secondary, and they are now beginning to understand what it takes to go:

We hope that those of you working at home have had a look at the PowerPoints too, as we have found them really useful in getting us to think about our attitudes to school, and how we deal with our worries. We will look at more of these next week.

As you know, we have introduced some 'theme' days, to make our last few weeks even more fun! This Monday was Colour Clash day. Take a look at some of the interesting clothing combos that we came up with!

Take a look at our timetable for this week:

Secondary Schools

Most of the local secondary schools have been producing content online to help with your transition, ready for September. Do check out your school's website to keep yourself up to date with what is happening.

We are looking forward to seeing your head wear choices on Monday - and remember, you can also take part in this if you are at home - just send in a picture, which we can include in next week's letter!

Keep smiling!
